

Initiatives dedicated to senior citizens

2021-02-25

The „stay at home” recommendations, dedicated shopping hours for senior citizens etc. are the manifestation of genuine care for older persons but, on the other hand, such actions encourage them to limit all activities, contacts and withdraw from social interactions, eventually leading to deterioration of the older persons’ quality of life and health, social isolation and sadness.

Seniors Activity Centres during pandemic

Despite the advice from regional authorities, Kraków did not suspend the operation of the Seniors Activity Centres (SAC) network with the outbreak of COVID-19 pandemic, but only prohibited the organization of all group meetings and activities. SAC coordinators continued to work part time at the Centres and the staff providing support for the participants of IT classes was available on-call. This made possible the organization of the volunteer support network for SAC members and the involvement of older and young volunteers willing to meet various needs of senior citizens staying at home, as well as coordination of the cultural and educational activities online.

During the COVID-19 pandemic, in each of 42 Seniors Activity Centres at least 3 hours of online activities are offered each day, including: language courses, memory trainings, dance classes, art classes, drama workshops, various gym classes, ICT classes, healthy eating courses as well as meetings with interesting personalities from the fields of science, art and culture. There are also online social meetings moderated by the SAC coordinators or volunteering senior citizens. Over 2.000 seniors participate in such projects.

To facilitate participation in the above listed online activities and to provide general assistance to our senior citizens during the pandemic, each Seniors Activity Centre organizes on-call tech support for elderly persons who want to take part in the dedicated online activities but have difficulties using the computer or problems with establishing a connection.

The need to stay active, to maintain social interactions, and the growing belief in the undeniable importance and value of information technology during pandemic resulted in significant reduction of digital exclusion among senior citizens in Kraków. It was possible thanks to dozens of computer skills trainings as well as smartphone and tablet operation instruction classes that have long been organized by the Municipality of Krakow. During these trainings senior citizens were given advice on what equipment to buy and how to sign an agreement with the internet provider. In all the above actions, intended to help older persons to embrace technology, the Municipality of Kraków partnered with Krakow’s NGOs whose role in these initiatives has been substantial.
